The novel opens with Aunt Polly scouring the house in search of her nephew, Tom Sawyer. She finds him in the closet, discovers that his hands are covered with ink, and prepares to give him a whipping. Tom cries out theatrically, “Look behind you!” and when Aunt Polly turns, Tom escapes over the fence. After Tom is gone, Aunt Polly reflects ruefully on Tom’s mischief and how she lets him get away with too much.

Tom comes home at suppertime, bleary-eyed and dressed in_rags, and tells his aunt about his adventures. During supper, Aunt Polly’s heart swells with pride. Tom has been skipped school that afternoon and went instead to the river, where he caught a large fish. His chin is still sore from the black eye he got, but still, Tom’s half-brother, Benjy, is envious. Tom narrates the events, turning the page. Aunt Polly is satisfied.

Tom goes out of the house and into the streets of St. Petersburg, but realizes that he is too busy to clean his hands. When he returns home in the evening, Tom finds Aunt Polly waiting for him. She notices his dirty clothes and resolves to make him work the next day, a Saturday, as punishment.

On Saturday morning, Aunt Polly sends Tom out to whitewash the fence. Sam pussy tuck, and Tom tries to get him to do some of the whitewashing in return for a “white alley,” a kind of名誉, and Tom agrees, but Aunt Polly appears and chases him off, leaving Tom alone with his labors.
