The novel opens with Aunt Polly scouring the house in search of her nephew, Tom Sawyer. She finds him in the closet, discovers that his hands are covered with jam, and prepares to give him a whipping. Tom cries out theatrically. “Look behind you!” and when Aunt Polly turns, Tom escapes over the fence. After Tom is gone, Aunt Polly reflects sadly on Tom’s misconduct and how she lets him get away with too much.

Tom comes home at suppertime. He has a lot to tell about his adventures. During supper, Aunt Polly is surprised to learn that Tom has been dropped school that afternoon and went instead to get what he could of whisky. While wandering the streets of St. Petersburg, Tom meets a man who appears to be a gambler and eventually chooses the newcomer as the way home.

When he arrives home in the evening, Tom finds Aunt Polly waiting for him. She notices his dirty clothes and resolves to make him work the next day, a Saturday, as punishment.

On Saturday morning, Aunt Polly sends Tom out to whitewash the fence. Just passes by, and Tom tries to get him to do some of the whitewashing in return for a “white ally,” a kind of marker. He almost agrees, but Aunt Polly appears and chased him off, leaving Tom alone with his work.

Tom comes home at suppertime with no clothes and no story about his adventures. During supper, Aunt Polly is furious. She has sent him to be whipped for leaving, and Tom’s mother is astonished. Aunt Polly is satisfied. Tom has sworn the next time he goes out he will not come back hungry.

Tom goes out of the house because he is hungry. His mother has been doing the washing. While wandering the streets of St. Petersburg, Tom is passed by a group of boys, and Aunt Polly is not around. Tom and the new arrival are out of the house. Tom is about to be whipped, and eventually he comes the way home.
