Communities Of Science In Nineteenth Century Ireland Juliana Adelman
The novel opens with Aunt Polly scouring the house in search of her nephew, Tom Sawyer. She finds him in the closet, discovers that his hands are covered with jam, and prepares to give him a whipping. Tom cries out theatrically, “Look behind you!” and when Aunt Polly turns, Tom escapes over the fence. After Tom is gone, Aunt Polly reflects sadly on Tom’s mischievous and how she lets him get away with too much.

Tom comes home at suppertime with his hands black and dirty. He has skipped school that afternoon and went visiting instead. His clothes are still warn from his last adventure, and his hair is still wet from the rain. Tom’s half-brother, Sid, is at home, and Aunt Polly is satisfied. Tom goes out of the house into the street, and the sun is setting and casting long shadows. Tom and the new arrival of a runaway horseradish to the street.

When he returns home in the evening, Tom finds Aunt Polly waiting for him. She notices his dirty clothes and resolves to make him work the next day, a Saturday, as punishment.

On Saturday morning, Aunt Polly sends Tom out to whitewash the fence. Tom passes by, and Tom tries to get him to do some of the whitewashing in return for a “white alley,” a kind of notice. Tom almost agrees, but Aunt Polly appears and chases him off, leaving Tom alone with his tasks.
