Cultural Adaptations Tools For Evidence Based Practice With Diverse Populations
The novel opens with Aunt Polly returning home in search of her nephew, Tom Sawyer. She finds him in the closet, discovers that his hands are covered with gum, and prepares to give him a whipping. Tom cries out theatrically, "Look behind you!" and when Aunt Polly turns, Tom escapes over the fence. After Tom is gone, Aunt Polly reflects on Tom's mischief and how she lets him get away with too much.

Tom comes home at supper time, looking very white and wan. He has been skipping school that afternoon and went instead to Tom Sawyer's River, where he fished all afternoon and did not see any fish. As a result, Tom is in need of a whipping. While wondering the streets of St. Petersburg, Tom sees a shabby, worn-out, and agitated man who looks like he needs help. Tom and the new arrival exchange a few words and eventually choose the newcomer as the waiter.

When he returns home in the evening, Tom finds Aunt Polly waiting for him. She notices his dirty clothes and resolves to make him work the next day, a Saturday, as punishment.

On Saturday morning, Aunt Polly sends Tom out to whitewash the fence. Jim passes by, and Tom tries to get him to do some of the whitewashing in return for a "white alley," a kind of notebook. Jim almost agrees, but Aunt Polly appears and chases him off, leaving Tom alone with his task.

Tom crosses home at supper and then goes back to school. He is told he will be skipped school that afternoon and must come to the bank and clean up the floor as part of the punishment. Tom goes out and sleeps on the grass, and when he wakes up, he sees a pile of trinkets and a note that his uncle wants him to come to the bank and show him that his uncle is still alive and well. Aunt Polly is satisfied.

Tom goes out of the house into the street, and when he is done, he returns to the bank and eventually cleans the streets all the way home.

has never been researched in depth. Hugh Rawson's Dictionary Of Invective contains the most detailed study of what he calls "The most heavily tabooed of all English words" (1989), though his article is only five pages long.

Key facts: All organisms are well adapted to the environment in which they live. Whether a population increases or decreases depends on a number of different factors including disease, competition, predation and human influences.
