Diagnostic Pediatric Hematopathology
The novel opens with Aunt Polly scouring the house in search of her nephew, Tom Sawyer. She finds him in the closet, discovers that his hands are covered with jam, and prepares to give him a whipping. Tom cries out theatrically, “Look behind you!” and when Aunt Polly turns, Tom escapes over the fence. After Tom is gone, Aunt Polly reflects capriciously on Tom’s mishap and how she lets him get away with too much.

Tom comes home at supper time. He reports that he has been whipped, but only a “little trifle” for loafing and charging. Aunt Polly is satisfied. While Tom is eating his supper, she asks him if he got into any row with Ben Rogers. Ben is Tom’s half-brother, and Tom had been caught stealing and argued with the young scamp. Aunt Polly is worried about his future and feels that it’s time to be whipped and sent to school.

Tom goes out of the house to find his friend, Huckleberry Finn. Tom finds Huckleberry in the back yard, playing with a rifle. Tom front a gun and a knife and they decide to go on a river trip. Tom and Huckleberry are fascinated by the idea of being a river pilot and eventually dream of becoming the owners of the whole Mississippi.

When he returns home in the evening, Tom finds Aunt Polly waiting for him. She notices his dirty clothes and resolves to make him work the next day, a Saturday, as punishment.

On Saturday morning, Aunt Polly sends Tom out to whitewash the fence. Jim passes by, and Tom tries to get him to do some of the whitewashing in return for a “white alley,” a kind of money. Jim almost agrees, but Aunt Polly appears and chases him off, leaving Tom alone with his chores.

Tom comes home at suppertime, dirty, ragged, and sullen. Never in all his life had he been so enraged about his adventures. During supper, Aunt Polly tells Tom it has been decided he must be shipped off to school the next day to discover some new things. Tom’s half-brother, Sid, is at school. Tom has sworn to himself to disguise his identity and go to school anyway.

Tom goes out of the house in the moonlight to look for a way to get into school as a boy. While wandering the streets of St. Petersburg, he finds Ben Watson, a young man who has been shipwrecked and rescued. Tom and the new arrival agree to go to school together and eventually choose the new comer as the way home.
