The novel opens with Aunt Polly scrounging the house in search of her nephew, Tom Sawyer. She finds him in the closet, discovers that his hands are covered with jam, and prepares to give him a whipping. Tom cries out theatrically, “Look behind you!” and when Aunt Polly turns, Tom escapes over the fence. After Tom is gone, Aunt Polly reflects sadly on Tom’s misbehavior and how she lets him get away with too much.

Tom comes home at suppertime. He is not badly hurt and has about his adventures. During supper, Aunt Polly watches the boy carefully. He is not skipping school that afternoon and doesn’t seem to be skipping school that afternoon. She knows he was out there somewhere and she knows that he is still aware of his task but she is too busy to care. Aunt Polly is satisfied.

Tom and the new arrival curiosity of the new boy do not get along and eventually he releases the newcomer all the way home.

When he returns home in the evening, Tom finds Aunt Polly waiting for him. She notices his dirtied clothes and resolves to make him work the next day, a Saturday, as punishment.

On Saturday morning, Aunt Polly sends Tom out to whitewash the fence. Joe goes by, and Tom tries to get him to do some of the whitewashing in return for a “white alley,” a kind of milestone. Joe almost agrees, but Aunt Polly appears and chases him off, leaving Tom alone with his task.
