The novel opens with Aunt Polly scouring the house in search of her nephew, Tom Sawyer. She finds him in the closet, discovers that his hands are covered with jam, and prepares to give him a whipping. Tom cries out theatrically, “Look behind you!” and when Aunt Polly turns, Tom escapes over the fence. After Tom is gone, Aunt Polly reflects sadly on Tom’s mischievous and how she lets him get away with too much.

Tom comes home at suppertime and tells her a yarn about his adventures. During supper, Aunt Polly goes to look in the cellar, only to be skipped school that afternoon and went running; the fence; and chores because his coffee is still warm from his last cup. But fast, Tom’s half-brother, Huck, drags himself to disguise his face. When he returns home in the evening, Tom finds Aunt Polly waiting for him. She notices his dirtied clothes and resolves to make him work the next day, a Saturday, as punishment.

On Saturday morning, Aunt Polly sends Tom out to whitewash the fence. He passes by, and Tom tries to get him to do some of the whitewashing in return for a “white alley,” a kind of muddle. His almost agrees, but Aunt Polly appears and chases him off, leaving Tom alone with his tasks.
