The novel opens with Aunt Polly scouring the house in search of her nephew, Tom Sawyer. She finds him in the closet, discovers that his hands are covered with jam, and prepares to give him a whipping. Tom cries out theatrically, "Look behind you!" and when Aunt Polly turns, Tom escapes over the fence. After Tom is gone, Aunt Polly reflects sadly on Tom's naughtiness and how she lets him get away with too much.

Tom comes home at suppertime dirty and disheveled, having been caught skipping school that afternoon and went fishing instead. He tells his tale and shows her that his collar is still wet from the rain, but still, Tom's half-brother Dick is punished much more severely and shows that Tom has worse the Aunt Polly is satisfied.

Tom goes out of the house into the yard, where he finds a little girl in a rickety cart. She is his age, and he is interested in her. Tom is eventually charmed and eventually chooses the newcomer as the way home.

When he returns home in the evening, Tom finds Aunt Polly waiting for him. She notices his dirtied clothes and resolves to make him work the next day, a Saturday, as punishment.

On Saturday morning, Aunt Polly sends Tom out to whiten the house. Tom passes by, and Tom tries to get him to do some of the whitening in return for a "white alley," a kind of outlet. Aunt Polly agrees, but Aunt Polly appears and chases him off, leaving Tom alone with his talons.
