The novel opens with Aunt Polly scouring the house in search of her nephew, Tom Sawyer. She finds him in the closet, discovers that his hands are covered with jam, and prepares to give him a whipping. Tom cries out theatrically, "Look behind you!" and when Aunt Polly turns, Tom escapes over the fence. After Tom is gone, Aunt Polly reflects wistfully on Tom’s mischievous and how she lets him get away with too much.

Tom comes home at supper and Aunt Polly tells him about his adventures. During supper, Aunt Polly tells Tom that he will be whipped for skipping school that afternoon and must return the watch that his cousin has still not found. The next day, Tom and his half-brother, Huck, sneak out to hunt for the watch. Tom has sworn he would not betray his friend and eventually returns the watch all the way home.

When he returns home in the evening, Tom finds Aunt Polly waiting for him. She notices his dirtied clothes and resolves to make him work the next day, a Saturday, as punishment.

On Saturday morning, Aunt Polly sends Tom out to whiten the fence. Jim passes by, and Tom tries to get him to do some of the whitewashing in return for a “white alley,” a kind of marvel. Jim almost agrees, but Aunt Polly appears and chases him off, leaving Tom alone with his tasks.

Tom comes home at supper, looking roundly doleful, and tells Aunt Polly of his adventures. During supper, Aunt Polly asks him about his absences and what adventures he has had. Tom conveys that he was not skip school that afternoon and went instead to a saloon where his father was still rowing a boat. Aunt Polly is satisfied.

Tom goes out of the house in a whining and whistling. While wandering the streets of St. Petersburg, Tom and Huck meet up with some sailors who have recently returned from a voyage and eventually chase the sailors all the way home.
