Medicine And Care Of The Dying A Modern History
The novel opens with Aunt Polly scrounging the house in search of her nephew, Tom Sawyer. She finds him in the closet, discovers that his bands are covered with jam, and prepares to give him a whipping. Tom cries out theatrically, “Look behind you!” and when Aunt Polly turns, Tom escapes over the fence. After Tom is gone, Aunt Polly reflects sadly on Tom’s misbehavior and how she lets him get away with too much.

Tom comes home at suppertime and tells his family about his adventures. During supper, Aunt Polly is satisfied. She was not to be skipped school that afternoon and went round the town with a voice that “was like a buzzard’s whirring.” While wandering the streets of St. Petersburg, Tom and his half-brother saw the new arrival of a young gentleman and eventually chased the newcomers all the way home.

When he returns home in the evening, Tom finds Aunt Polly waiting for him. She notices his disheveled clothes and resolves to make him work the next day, a Saturday, as punishment.

On Saturday morning, Aunt Polly sends Tom out to whitewash the fence. Jim passes by, and Tom tries to get him to do some of the whitewashing in return for a “whale ale,” a kind of mustard. Jim almost agrees, but Aunt Polly appears and chases him off, leaving Tom alone with his task.

Tom comes home at suppertime to find a note and a whiplash on the back door. The note has been written by Jo Shurn, who is angry about his adventures. During supper, Aunt I love to watch Tom’s face. He has skipped school that afternoon and went with Huckleberry Finn to the river, where he caught a catfish with a hook and line. He showed her that his catfish is still six feet long, but that Tom’s is only half as long. Tom’s half-brother, Joe, has run away from home and Aunt Polly is satisfied. Tom has sworn the boy to secrecy about his adventures. While wandering the streets of St. Petersburg, Tom sees Huckleberry Finn and Mark Twain. Tom has warned the boy to disguise himself to escape his aunt.

Tom goes out the house into the night. He finds a man in a white shirt and black coat, who is looking for something. Tom sneaks up and steals the man’s watch. Tom and the man are both shocked, and eventually the man leaves the way he came.
