The novel opens with Aunt Polly scouring the house in search of her nephew, Tom Sawyer. She finds him in the closet, discovers that his hands are covered with jam, and prepares to give him a whipping. Tom cries out theatrically, "Look behind you!" and when Aunt Polly turns, Tom escapes out the front. After Tom is gone, Aunt Polly reflects sadly on Tom's mischievousness and how she lets him get away with too much.

Tom comes home at suppertime and his mother can tell there's been talk in the neighborhood about his adventures. During supper, Aunt Polly tells him he had better not be skipped school that afternoon and won't receive his pocket money for two weeks. His father is still away from home, but Tom's half-brother, Huck, is there. He plans to go fishing and explore the river, but Tom dissuades him and decides to go as well. Tom has sworn the child to secrecy about his adventures. While wandering the streets of St. Petersburg, Tom and Huck see a stranger and are drawn in by a sense of adventure and excitement. Tom and the new arrival discuss the news of the day and eventually choose the river as the next locale.

When he returns home in the evening, Tom finds Aunt Polly waiting for him. She notices his dirtied clothes and resolves to make him work the next day, a Saturday, as punishment.

On Saturday morning, Aunt Polly sends Tom out to whitewash the fence. Jim passes by, and Tom lies to get him to do some of the whitewashing in return for a "white alley," a kind of McCabe. Jim almost agrees, but Aunt Polly appears and chases him off, leaving Tom alone with his tasks.

Tom comes home at suppertime to find his mother is not in the kitchen. She is at the barber shop. His father, Mr. Baker, has been toting Tom around all afternoon and has not returned. He will be skipped school that afternoon and most evenings for the next week. Mr. Baker gives Tom a cracker and draws him to the heart and shoes him that his college is still a few steps away.
