The novel opens with Aunt Polly scouring the house in search of her nephews, Tom Sawyer. She finds him in the closet, discovers that his hands are covered with jam, and prepares to give him a whipping. Tom cries out theatrically, “Look behind you!” and when Aunt Polly turns, Tom escapes over the fence. After Tom is gone, Aunt Polly reflects sadly on Tom’s mischief and how she lets him get away with too much.

Tom comes home at supper. His clothes are torn and dirty, and he has about his adventures. During supper, Aunt Polly tells him that he will have to be whipped school that afternoon and mustn’t leave the house. Tom sullenly eats his supper and does not speak, but he feels more than a little bit cross. Aunt Polly is satisfied, and Tom, who has learned to disguise his feelings, tries to look as if he has enjoyed the supper. After supper, Tom goes out to the garden. The moon is shining, and Tom feels a little bit cross. Aunt Polly is satisfied, and Tom, who has learned to disguise his feelings, tries to look as if he has enjoyed the supper. When he returns home in the evening, Tom finds Aunt Polly waiting for him. She notices his dirty clothes and resolves to make him work the next day, a Saturday, as punishment.

On Saturday morning, Aunt Polly sends Tom out to whitewash the fence. Tom grubs in, and Tom has to get him to do some of the whitewashing in return for a “white alley,” a kind of mule. Tom almost agrees, but Aunt Polly appears and chases him off, leaving Tom alone with his chores.

Tom comes home at suppertime. His mother, Mary Hales, tells him he has been skipped school that afternoon and must make up the lessons. Tom’s mother and Aunt Polly are both concerned about his adventures. During supper, Aunt Polly asks Tom about his adventures the day before, and Tom tells them about his visit to the一是 and how he has decided to stop badgering the other boys. Aunt Polly is satisfied.

Tom goes out of the house into the garden. As he walks, he contemplates his future. He knows he must work hard to earn the respect of his mother and Aunt Polly. Tom knows that he must be careful not to make too many excuses to Aunt Polly and his mother. He knows that he must be responsible and eventually choose the answers to all the way home.
