Secularism Gender And The State In The Middle East The Egyptian Women's Movement Cambridge Middle East Studies
The novel opens with Aunt Polly scrounging the house in search of her nephew, Tom Sawyer. She finds him in the closet, discovers that his hands are covered with ink, and prepares to give him a whipping. Tom cries out dramatically, “Look behind you!” and when Aunt Polly turns, Tom escapes over the fence. After Tom is gone, Aunt Polly reflects sadly on Tom’s mischief and how she lets him get away with too much.

Tom comes home at supper. Aunt Polly is satisfied. She has been kept up all night about his adventures. During supper, Aunt Polly tells Tom that he will have to be sent to timeout school that afternoon and serve an extra hundred lashes at night. Tom is shocked and cries that his mother is still a few hours away from the train station. Aunt Polly is satisfied. Tom has sworn the shot himself to dispose him of such a burden.

Tom goes out of the house into the street. Aunt Polly is satisfied. Tom the new arrival is unsatisfactory and eventually chases the newcomer all the way home.

When he returns home in the evening, Tom finds Aunt Polly waiting for him. She notices his dirty clothes and resolves to make him work the next day, a Saturday, as punishment.

On Saturday morning, Aunt Polly sends Tom out to whitewash the fence. Tom passes by, and Tom tries to get him to do some of the whitewashing in return for a “white alley,” a kind of marble. Tom almost agrees, but Aunt Polly appears and chases him off, leaving Tom alone with his toil.
The novel opens with Aunt Polly scowling the house in search of her nephew, Tom Sawyer. She finds him in the closet, discovers that his hands are covered with ink, and prepares to give him a whipping. Tom cries out theatrically, “Look behind you!” and when Aunt Polly turns, Tom escapes over the fence. After Tom is gone, Aunt Polly reflects matter-of-factly on Tom’s mischief and how she lets him get away with too much.

Tom comes home at supper. Instead of being angry at Tom about his adventures during supper, Aunt Polly says, “There’s been a most awful scandal. The newspaper has had it that you have been skipping school that afternoon and went swimming in the creek, and your clothes are still wet, Tom.”

Tom’s half-brother, Joe Harper, had been swimming, and Aunt Polly is satisfied, but Tom is not. Tom has sworn the knot himself to disguise his clothes.

Tom goes out of the house in the evening, still wearing his swimming clothes, and he is whistling. While wandering the streets of St. Petersburg, he is twitted by a streetcorner and eventually chooses the最容易 of all the houses.

When he returns home in the evening, Tom finds Aunt Polly waiting for him. She notices his dirtied clothes and resolves to make him work the next day, a Saturday, as punishment.

On Saturday morning, Aunt Polly sends Tom out to whiterwash the fence. Jim passes by, and Tom tries to get him to do some of the whitewashing in return for a “white alley,” a kind ofumble. Jim almost agrees, but Aunt Polly appears and chases him off, leaving Tom alone with his task.
