The novel opens with Aunt Polly scouring the house in search of her nephew, Tom Sawyer. She finds him in the closet, discovers that his hands are covered with ink, and prepares to give him a whipping. Tom cries out dramatically, “Look behind you!” and when Aunt Polly turns, Tom escapes over the fence. After Tom is gone, Aunt Polly reflects ruefully on Tom’s mischief and how she lets him get away with too much.

Tom comes home at supper, covered in ink, and Aunt Polly asks him to tell her about his adventures. During supper, Aunt Polly asks Tom if he was ever punished, and Tom replies, “Aunt Polly, you can’t imagine the things I’ve been punished for!” Aunt Polly is satisfied, and Tom’s half-brother, Ben, is left to clean up the mess. Tom has sworn to himself to disguise his behavior.

Tom goes out of the house to clear his head and discovers that his collar is still worn from his punishment. While wandering the streets of St. Petersburg, Tom encounters a group of boys who are discussing their school experiences. Tom and the new arrival, Huckleberry Finn, quickly become friends and eventually choose the newcomer as the way home.

When he returns home in the evening, Tom finds Aunt Polly waiting for him. She notices his dirty clothes and resolves to make him work the next day, a Saturday, as punishment.

On Saturday morning, Aunt Polly sends Tom out to whitewash the fence. As punishment, Tom is told to paint it. Tom tries to get Tom to do some of the whitewashing as a favor for a “slave alley,” a kind of service. Tom accepts, but Aunt Polly appears and charges him off, leaving Tom alone with his tasks.
The novel opens with Aunt Polly scouring the house in search of her nephew, Tom Sawyer. She finds him in the closet, discovers that his hands are covered in ink, and prepares to give him a whipping. Tom cries out theatrically, “Look behind you!” and when Aunt Polly turns, Tom escapes over the fence. After Tom is gone, Aunt Polly reflects sadly on Tom’s naughtiness and how she lets him get away with too much.

Tom comes home at supper and finds Aunt Polly slapping himself about his adventures. During supper, Aunt Polly tells Tom she’ll have to be skinned school that afternoon and evening wash. Tom has a suitable smite on his head and shows her that his clothes are still wear from before he went, but she tells Tom’s half-brother, “Do your work and don’t let him disfigure his face.”

Tom goes out of the house to find the river whirling, while wandering the streets of St. Petersburg. Tom and the new arrival come to a halt near a pile of mud and eventually choose the newcomers as the way home.

When he returns home in the evening, Tom finds Aunt Polly waiting for him. She notices his dirtied clothes and resolves to make him work the next day, a Saturday, as punishment.

On Saturday morning, Aunt Polly sends Tom out to whitenew the fence. Sam passes by, and Tom tries to get him to do some of the whitening in return for a “white alley,” a kind of exercise Tom almost agrees, but Aunt Polly appears and chases him off, leaving Tom alone with his toil.
