The novel opens with Aunt Polly scouring the house in search of her nephew, Tom Sawyer. She finds him in the closet, discovers that his hands are covered with jam, and prepares to give him a whipping. Tom cries out theatrically, “Look behind you!” and when Aunt Polly turns, Tom escapes over the fence. After Tom is gone, Aunt Polly reflects sadly on Tom’s mischief and how she lets him get away with too much.

Tom comes home at suppertime, having eaten his dinner at school, and tells his adventures. Dining supper, Aunt Polly is surprised to learn that Thomas has been skipped school that morning and went to the courthouse and bought a gun. Aunt Polly is satisfied, but thinks Tom’s half-brother, Huck, is much worse. Tom has sworn the boy himself to dispose his fortune.

Tom goes out of the house almost immediately and goes to the courthouse to see the trial. After the trial, he wanders the streets of St. Petersburg, whistling. While wandering, he is met by Ben Rogers, his former schoolmate and eventual friend.

Tom and the new arrival cross paths in town and eventually choose the newcomer as the way home.

When he returns home in the evening, Tom finds Aunt Polly waiting for him. She notices his dirtied clothes and resolves to make him work the next day, a Saturday, as punishment.

On Saturday morning, Aunt Polly sends Tom out to whitewash the fence. Jim passes by, and Tom tries to get Jim to do some of the whitewashing in return for a “white alley,” a kind of marble. Jim almost agrees, but Aunt Polly appears and causes him off, leaving Tom alone with his tasks.

Tom comes home at supper time. The house is in a state of confusion. Tom has been skipping school that afternoon, and in an attempt to catch up, he has broken an earthenware jug of Aunt Polly’s. The Federal Guard, who are quartered in the house, hear the commotion and come to investigate. Tom has no choice but to confess his sin and promise to mend the jug.

Tom goes out of the house to the streets. He is soon caught by a wedding party. Tom reports on the bride and groom, who are being carried along on the backs of their friends. Tom has already earned a reputation for reporting the news and for knowing all the social gossip.
