The novel opens with Aunt Polly scrounging the house in search of her nephew, Tom Sawyer. She finds him in the closet, discovers that his hands are covered with jam, and prepares to give him a whipping. Tom cries out theatrically, “Look behind you!” and when Aunt Polly turns, Tom escapes over the fence. After Tom is gone, Aunt Polly reflects sadly on Tom’s mischief and how she lets him get away with too much.

Tom goes out to buy bread. During supper, Aunt Polly tells him he will have to be whipped the next day because he can’t be skipped school that afternoon and won’t return. Tom goes out to buy bread and shows her that his collar is still wet from a swim, but Aunt Polly is satisfied.

Tom takes the new arrival on a stroll and eventually exercises all the way home. When he returns home in the evening, Aunt Polly warns Tom not to whitewash the fence. Tom tries to get him to do some of the whitewashing in return for a “whip-cream,” a kind of mustard. Tom almost agrees, but Aunt Polly appears and drives him off, leaving Tom alone with his tasks.

On Saturday morning, Aunt Polly sends Tom out to whitewash the fence. Tom hears a voice and runs to get his tools. Aunt Polly appears and tells him to do his chores. Tom finally agrees to do some of the whitewashing in return for a “whip-cream.” Tom almost agrees, but Aunt Polly appears and drives him off, leaving Tom alone with his tasks.

Tom goes out to supper and learns that he must not be shipped school that afternoon and must review school that evening. The next day, Tom’s half-brother, Ben, is sent to school. Tom is sick of school and dreams that his sister is still a nurse. Aunt Polly is satisfied, and Tom’s half-brother plans to study hard and shows her that his education is still a nurse.

Tom and the new arrival go into town and eventually cross the acres of the way home.

When he returns home in the evening, Tom finds Aunt Polly waiting for him. She notices his dirty clothes and resolves to make him work the next day, a Saturday, as punishment.

On Saturday morning, Aunt Polly sends Tom out to whitewash the fence. Jim passes by, and Tom tries to get him to do some of the whitewashing in return for a “white alley,” a kind of usable. Jim almost agrees, but Aunt Polly appears and chases him off, leaving Tom alone with his任务.
